

StreamVision Entertainment — Q1 2025 Executive Report

Business Performance Summary | January – March 2025

Date: April 15, 2025 | Classification: INTERNAL — CONFIDENTIAL

Executive Summary

StreamVision delivered strong Q1 2025 results, driven primarily by the exceptional performance of Stellar Run, which has emerged as the platform's most-watched title since launch. Total platform views increased 34% year-over-year, while Premium subscriber conversions grew 18%. The Action and Sci-Fi genres continue to outperform all others in completion rates and subscriber acquisition. Comedy titles underperformed relative to their production cost, with Silver Screen and Laugh Track delivering below-average ratings of 3.2 and 3.0 respectively.

Content Performance Highlights

Stellar Run (Action, 2025) recorded 45,230 total views in Q1, making it the top-performing title by a significant margin. Its completion rate of 82% is the highest in the current catalogue. Viewer feedback highlights the film's pacing and visual effects as key satisfaction drivers. The title is trending sharply upward month-over-month, suggesting strong organic word-of-mouth momentum. Social media mentions of Stellar Run increased 210% between January and March 2025.

Dark Orbit (Sci-Fi, 2025) and Last Kingdom (Drama, 2025) rank second and third respectively. Dark Orbit appeals strongly to the 25–34 male demographic, while Last Kingdom skews toward female viewers aged 35–54 with notably higher review scores (avg 4.5). Both titles benefit from strong critical reception and are driving Premium tier upgrades.

Comedy underperformance is a key concern. Both Silver Screen and Laugh Track received ratings below 3.5, which is below the platform average of 3.9. Root cause analysis suggests misalignment between the target demographic and actual viewership composition. Comedy titles attract primarily the Free tier, limiting revenue per view. Marketing spend on comedy titles yielded the lowest ROI across all genres in Q1.

Geographic Performance

Mumbai and Bangalore led engagement in Q1 2025, accounting for 28% of total platform views combined. Mumbai showed the highest revenue per viewer, driven by a disproportionate share of Premium and Enterprise subscribers. Delhi showed the fastest growth trajectory with a 41% QoQ increase. Southern cities (Hyderabad, Chennai) are emerging markets with strong growth potential but currently under-indexed on Premium conversions. Tier-2 cities (Pune, Bhopal, Nagpur) represent an untapped opportunity where Free-to-Basic conversion campaigns could yield meaningful subscriber growth.

Subscriber Metrics

Total active viewers: 300 (Q1 cohort). Premium tier accounts for 35% of the subscriber base and 62% of total revenue. The 25–34 age group is the largest and most valuable segment, with the highest completion rates and the strongest correlation with Premium upgrades. The 18–24 cohort shows high engagement volume but predominantly on the Free tier. A targeted conversion campaign for this cohort is recommended as a Q2 priority.

Q2 2025 Outlook and Recommendations

Based on Q1 performance trends, leadership should consider the following actions: (1) Increase content investment in Action and Sci-Fi, which deliver the highest ROI per production dollar. (2) Pause new comedy commissions until the platform better understands the genre's monetisation challenges. (3) Launch a targeted subscriber conversion campaign in Mumbai, Delhi, and Bangalore, where intent signals are strongest. (4) Invest in original content for the 35–54 female demographic, which drives the highest review scores and retention rates. (5) Expand marketing spend on Stellar Run during its trending window to maximise organic momentum.
